

We regard it as extremely unfortunate for Indiana that her Legislature should have adjourned without adopting any course calculated to relieve the State from the degradation and dishonor of withholding from individuals their just dues. We are assured on undoubted authority, that if that body should evince a disposition to do right, by an earnest effort, even should it result in paying but a small portion of the interest accruing on the public debt, the creditors of the State would gladly co-operate to restore her prosperity, by advancing funds sufficient to complete her public works.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, Jan. 25.

We regret as much as the Journal of Commerce can, that our Legislature, or rather, to speak more definitely and correctly, that the Whig majority in the House of Representatives, from feelings of mere partisan hostility towards the Governor, absolutely refused to adopt any measure "calculated to relieve the State from the degradation and dishonor" alluded to. But such nevertheless was the fact, and the "degradation and dishonor" must remain until the people send up men who will be influenced by more elevated and honorable motives, or who, at least, will not "be ready at a word" from their file leaders, to sacrifice what ever remains of the once high character of the State, for the paltry purpose of circumventing their political opponents in efforts to accomplish the redemption of our lost credit, if possible to do so. The more we reflect upon it, the more inexorable does the conduct of that Whig majority seem to have been. To think that a bill, reported from the Committee of Ways and Means, and which received the sanction of the Senate—a bill against the provisions of which there was no sound objection,—that in itself could accomplish nothing likely to ensure to the benefit of one party more than another,—which simply authorized the Agent of State to consult with our creditors, and to lay the results of that consultation before the next Legislature for its action,—to remember, that when a bill so perfectly innocuous in every respect as this was before the House, that the Whig Speaker, should descend from his chair, late on the last night of the session, raise the party war-whoop, commence a paltry personal assault on the State Agent, about the payment of lawyer's fees incurred chiefly by the late Whig Gov. Noble,—these reminiscences, we say, are any thing but pleasant to us, and will probably afford quite as little satisfaction to our people. The evil however is remediless, so far as the past is concerned. Its recurrence may be prevented if the people so will it.

The latter part of the paragraph from the Journal of Commerce, is certainly of importance, but much less so to the people of this State, than it might previously have been, since the passage of Marshall's bill authorizing the prosecution of the public works by Companies. Under that law companies have undertaken to complete the Madison and Indianapolis Rail Road, the White Water Valley Canal, and other works, parts of the "system of 1836," which would be likely to afford immediate profits to the stockholders. Those which do not offer sufficient promise of profit to induce companies to go on with them, under the favorable provisions of the law, are not worth completing by the State, especially on borrowed capital. There is one work, however, disconnected with the system of 1836, which might receive the benefits of the funds conditionally offered. We mean the Wabash and Erie Canal. This work, perhaps really the most important in the State, has thus far been constructed principally by means accruing out of lands granted for that purpose by the General Government, to this State and Ohio. The northern portion is finished from Lafayette to the Lake, and yields handsome returns. It is progressing slowly between Lafayette and Terre Haute, by means of Scrip based upon the canal lands and the tolls. This scrip has never commanded above an average of 50 per cent. in cash, and probably much less. Of course the State makes her contracts under great disadvantages, for contractors make their estimates with an eye to the depreciated paper in which they are paid. To redeem this scrip, except the amount received for tolls, the lands are being disposed of, at a price 50 per cent. less than they sold for a few years ago, and less than half, probably, that they would bring five years hence, after the completion of the work passing through them. Further, a bill has passed the Senate, and we hope will pass the House, in Congress, making a further grant of lands to continue the Canal from Terre Haute to Evansville on the Ohio river. The question will arise, should this new grant be obtained, whether we shall continue the ruinous policy of issuing land scrip, or of endeavoring to procure other means, so that the lands can be husbanded until they can be profitably sold? The "assurance" given by the Journal of Commerce, if authenticated in a proper manner, may assist a future Legislature in adopting a course best adapted for the honor and interest of the State. We feel the more interest in the completion of the Great Canal, because we look to it as giving promise not only of great and general benefit as an outlet for the immense quantity of produce, which until it be completed, must remain in the rich Valley of the Wabash, comparatively a mere drudge; but also because, it is the only work which remains in the exclusive possession of the State, to which we can look with certainty as capable of affording immediate assistance in the payment of the State liabilities, and to that extent lightening the burdens of direct taxation.

But for the refusal of the Whig majority in the Legislature to pass the bill authorizing a consultation with our creditors, this important matter might have been matured in time for presentation to the next General Assembly, for its immediate action. The interest and honor of the State, &c. at least, the little that remains from the wreck of former Whig mismanagement, ought to have prompted a better course. Unfortunately it was not so, and we must for an additional year, for aught we see to the contrary, suffer the accumulated evils of lost credit, increasing debt, and diminishing reputation.

"Pork and Dollars."
Last summer, while the canvass for the Presidency was going on, certain Whig merchants and pork packers, here and elsewhere, told the people that if Mr. Clay was elected, they should buy hogs largely and give a good price for them, but if Mr. Polk should be chosen, they should buy few if any, and should only give the lowest prices; because, they said Polk's election would inevitably ruin all kinds of business, capital would evaporate in smoke, and nobody would have appetite enough left to eat pork or bacon. Well, Polk was elected, and what is now the price of hogs? "Pork and Dollars," is no longer a figurative expression, but a stern reality, as the Whig pork packers have no doubt by this time found out. Prices for Pork are better than they have been since 1840, and are still tending upward.

Occupation of Oregon.
The Military Committee of the House is said to have agreed to report a resolution appropriating the sum of $100,000, to be placed in the hands of the President, for the immediate armed occupation of Oregon. That is right. Go ahead!

John Arbuthnot, Esq., has been reinstated as postmaster at Princeton, Ia. He was one of the victims of 1840. His friends will be highly gratified at his re-appointment.

The Rail Road.
We take occasion to express the hope, that the Directory of the Rail Road, in procuring the means for the completion of the work, which they are authorized to obtain under the new Law, and in making future contracts, will be governed exclusively by the cash principle. It seems to us that experiments enough have already been tried, to satisfy even the most speculative mind, that this principle, in such works especially, is the only one which will certainly produce safe, speedy and economical results,—desiderata equally important to the public and the stockholders. To be more explicit, for fear we may not be fully understood, we will say plainly, that an agent should be immediately despatched to Boston, for the purpose of obtaining a loan in cash. We say Boston in preference to Philadelphia or New York, because there is unquestionably at the present time more surplus cash capital in Boston, than in any other eastern city, and the holders of it are now seeking safe and profitable investments of this description both at home and abroad. All that is necessary to obtain the funds is to submit to capitalists the abundant evidence, easy to be collected and put in proper shape, of the present condition of the road, of the favorable provisions of the laws by which it was conveyed to the present company, of the geography and topography of the rich region through which it traverses, unexcelled by any country in the same latitude, unbounded in natural resources and capable of unlimited improvement, and of the flourishing villages, created out of the wilderness by the imperative wants of the population, and to the magnitude of which the completion of the road must indefinitely add. Let what we thus have space only to hint at, be done by some agent who has the common sense and ability to do it as it ought to be done, intelligently and correctly, and our work for it, the money could immediately be obtained. This is the way successfully and economically to prosecute the work. Let us have no humbugging by old stocks of shop worn goods from Philadelphia or New York, for which two prices, and interest besides, would have to be paid, and which would not go half as far as cash, in the payment of labor and material, and would not be half as satisfactory or as useful to the whole community. A word more. Let there be no jealousy or favoritism in appointing an agent, if one should be appointed. We don't care whether he resides here, at Madison, or any where else, so that he is a man of business capacity and intelligence, and has not been too much identified with previous unsuccessful speculations. The population concerned, and it embraces an immense section of the State, is now disposed to regard the work in the most favorable light, and will yield it all the countenance and support in their power, if their confidence and present notions of cash and economy be not abused. We feel quite sure they will not be abused.

During the last year or two we have repeatedly suggested to our friends having an immediate interest in the completion of the road, the propriety of applying for a loan in Boston. The new law removes every obstacle to probable success in such a negotiation; and that money can be had, we have now the following evidence in black and white, from the Cincinnati Gazette of recent date:

"We expressed our gratification yesterday, at the prospect of a speedy completion of the Rail Road from Cincinnati to Sandusky city.
"A Mr. Miller of Yellow Springs has just returned from London, to which city he went sometime since, on his own hook, to obtain money to complete the road. He has secured in obtaining a promise of a loan of $500,000 in Boston for this purpose, upon terms as favorable as 7 per cent. interest. It is estimated that this sum will be sufficient to complete the connection of the Little Miami Road from Xenia, with the Madison and Erie Canal, and that the money can be had and applied to as to complete the road as fast as it can be constructed. It only requires the preliminary steps of a Legislative act authorizing a loan at that rate of interest, and the execution of the proper papers by the two companies. It is hoped that steps may be immediately taken to obtain this money, and for the completion of this important line of communication, at the earliest possible period."

As an evidence of his disposition among the capitalists of Boston and vicinity to invest capital in this way, take the following statement from the Boston Post. It reminds us of old times here.
"A steady flow of petitions for new railroads, and branches to and from existing roads, has continued to fill the journals of our Legislature, and if an adjustment within a reasonable period is contemplated, there must be appointed three or four committees to read and report upon the merits of each new project. During the past week the Senate chamber has been filled with parties interested in the Lowell rail road and the road from Lowell to Ballard's Lake. It is evident that it is evident that the remarks which fell from the chairman, that this committee are not friendly to the road from the Nashua road across Lowell city to Tewksbury and Ballard Lake, and it is somewhat doubtful if they report in favor of that road. Another, which is to branch out of the Lowell road.
"If the road to Ballard Lake were granted, there would be additional facilities of intercourse between Salem and Lowell when the road contemplated to intersect the Maine Extension at Malden is built, but the possibility of an avoidance of the Lowell road by the travellers from Concord, Nashua and Lowell, and the extension of the road, and then the Maine Extension to Boston, has tendency to revive the old question of vested rights. If the road prayed for from Myrick's station on the New Bedford road, and that from Bridgewater to Concord, were granted, an additional facility of intercourse would be effected in that same mode. From Salem to Boston there are two new railroads petitioned for, one to intersect the Maine Extension at Malden, and the other to come from Concord, and intersect the Lowell road at Framingham to Weston, intersecting the Fitchburg, it is asked for, which again involves the question of interference with chartered privileges in reference to the Worcester road. It is said, and it is true, that the road from Lowell to Ballard's Lake will be made on the Worcester, the fare now being one dollar and twenty-five cents from Boston to Worcester. This change will be made necessary by the Fitchburg opening in May, and it is said that to that line of travel that now goes to Worcester."

Organization.
The Louisville Journal evidently anticipates a defeat of Whiggery in Kentucky at the next elections, and earnestly exhorts the Whigs to avoid it if possible by an efficient organization. Its suggestions in relation to the nomination of candidates, are quite as good for the Democrats as the Whigs, and we commend them to our friends in this State, in the hope of seeing them generally applied in practice. We have got a hard battle to fight this year, and though we have no doubt of a successful issue, it can only be made certain by the most perfect union and concentration of our forces. The Whig leaders will know this, and it will be their policy to foster all the local divisions possible. We even hear it hinted that they will run an independent candidate in this Congressional district, if they can, and bargain and buy wherever they can, by swapping him off for members of the Legislature. No doubt we shall have lots of hocus pocus; but they can't succeed if our friends act as the Louisville Journal proposes the Whigs of Kentucky shall act, to wit:
"We propose as a fair mode that the Whigs, (Democrats,) in each district where there is likely to be more than one Whig (Democratic) candidate, shall meet in their respective precincts, on some day to be designated, and there select delegates to a Convention; that these delegates shall be unpledged, but tried and true Whigs, (Democrats,) and that they shall be authorized to select a committee of five or six members as there are representatives from the district in the Legislature, and to be apportioned among the several counties according to their representation, which committee shall meet and select a Whig (Democratic) candidate for Congress. The committee men would be enabled to learn the preferences of the people in the several counties, and to present to the Convention a list of names, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party, could select after careful inquiry, and for that selection would be able to select a name, without incurring the feelings of any gentleman, and without subjecting the Convention of selection to the charge of intrigue. The candidate will have had no lot or part in his own selection and could not fairly challenge the unanimity of his party. This committee being pledged to no individual, elected by individuals, and representing only the Whig (Democratic) party,